Proven success in your clinical trial with Linical Accelovance

Linical Accelovance is a market-leading, midsized, global Contract Research Organization (CRO) focused primarily in oncology, hematology, vaccines, neurology, and general medicine. We provide a full complement of clinical services for the pharmaceutical and biotech industries across the globe including the management and implementation of Phase I-IV clinical trials.

We have a company culture dedicated to quality, with experienced project teams, superb medical oversight, state of the art data management platforms, and a very experienced biostatistics team. Our clinical operations team is comprised of highly skilled individuals, the majority of whom are full-time employees and have advanced degrees, paving the way for strong site relationships and program stability. Our project managers have strong scientific backgrounds and work in tandem with medical management to set every program up for success. We have several board-certified physicians on staff comprising our medical information team, providing valuable consulting, development planning and program design, DSMB's, advisory boards, medical monitoring and beyond.
